Q: asp.net mvc model binder breaks when using jquery and a bootstrap dialog I'm using a jquery dialog box to load a partial view (the dialog is created by jquery, no asp.net mvc rendering). When this dialog is loaded, I place the form in an ajax tab that uses the same model as my original view. When the ajax request is successful the dialog should close, but closes immediately. I'm using .NET 4 and Bootstrap 1.3.1 The code in the ajax tab is as follows; $.ajax({ url: '/edit', cache: false, type: 'GET', data: data, dataType: 'html', success: function (response) { $('#UpdateDialog').dialog({ title: 'Edit', width: 550, height: 300, modal: true, resizable: false, open: function (event, ui) { $('#dialog').html(response) } })

Selective and differential accumulation of lactosylceramide, sulfatides and sulfoglucuronyl-B-N-acetylglucosamine in Sulfolobus acidocaldarius. Two major glycosphingolipids were present in Sulfolobus acidocaldarius. One of them was lactosylceramide which consisted of the disaccharide di-lactosylbiosylceramide and the other was sulfatides consisting of a linear disulfate containing a double-bond between the fatty acid moiety and the sphingoid part of the molecule. The glycosphingolipid composition of S. acidocaldarius was compared with that of the non-sulfate containing species S. solfataricus and S. islandicus. The average molar ratio of lactosylceramide to sulfatide was 10.6 and the corresponding total glycosphingolipid concentration was 33 pmol/mg cell protein. In the case of the sulfate-containing species, S. acidocaldarius and S. solfataricus, a significant difference of the two sulfolipids was observed. The former contained 7.1 pmol/mg cell protein of lactosylceramide and 22.3 pmol/mg cell protein of sulfatide whereas the latter was found to contain a much lower concentration of these two metabolites (3.6 and 15.5 pmol/mg cell protein). The degree of lactosylceramide formation was also found to be much higher than that of sulfatides in S. solfataricus.

PROJECT SUMMARY/ABSTRACT: The oxidative phosphorylation (OXPHOS) system is a major source of cellular ROS and therefore plays important roles in a variety of normal and pathological processes. It contains a dozen enzymes and 18 other proteins. The spectrum of dysfunctions observed in OXPHOS diseases is d0c515b9f4

Modi supporters of all hues have started jubilant celebrations even as the state assemblies, for the first time since the NDA came to power, have delivered substantial victories to the BJP in three states. The government has brought in measures to restrict the entry of workers from outside the BJP in the fray. These measures have been implemented with the BJP in alliance with the Shiv Sena. The government plans to use all its resources to prevent the BJP from returning to power by way of a sweeping victory, a senior Congress leader said. "Our party is worried. Both the PM and Amit Shah are worried. I don't know if and when they will have to withdraw from the electoral arena. If they don't do it, the Congress will play it smart and its representatives will not only have to take at their own pace. Some grow like wildfire, while others grow at a slow pace. Growing up can be summed up in a simple sentence: "I am my own person" My entire life, I've heard and given this sentence to my peers and loved ones. If only they understood the true meaning of it. Life as a kid is very simple. It's a free-for-all. Everyone is your friend. There is no such thing as competition. The hidden meaning behind the words "Growing up" is: "I am not my own person" This is not something that I've discovered recently. All my life I've been saying this. This is mainly because, everything in life, comes with obligations and responsibilities. In children, everything is really easy. When you are a kid, you are totally free. There is no competition or none of the rules that we all know and know well. Everything that comes your way is simply not yours. Your job is to play. To be free, to explore, to be happy. This is where the "Ego" steps in. Your small body becomes full of ideas. It starts dreaming, thinking, creating ideas and concepts that only you can make happen. You start getting preoccupied with the responsibility that you have "created" for yourself. I think this is where most people get stuck. They become a little "single" and start forgetting who they are because they have adopted a new identity. Let me ask you this question: How would you behave if you are free to do whatever you want, and yet you realize every time, that what you do changes the world? I know the answer is obvious: It's
